What is Emergency Medicine Day
On 27 May, we encourage citizens, patients, health care personnel, and institutions all around the world to talk about emergency medicine and make projects for progress in the discipline.

We believe it is important to build awareness about the need for well developed, well prepared and well organised emergency medical systems everywhere in the world to increase survival and reduce disability after any kind of urgent or emergent medical situation.

We think we can make a difference together.

Our goal
It is our goal to establish more and better Emergency Medical Systems in the world. But before we can really go into the field, we must create a strong network of decision makers, influencers, organisations and governments.

Now we are inviting organizations globally to join a video meeting to brainstorm together how we can collaborate and join our efforts to a practical approach to higher the level of Emergency Medical Care on a global scale.

Examples of what you can do.
- Go on the street and educate people what they can do when an emergency happens.
- Create and spread educational sheets with instructions for: CPR, Heimlich manoeuvre, and others.
- Promote us on an event, tell the people why Emergency Medicine is a very important specialty.
- Organise a simulation to show people the scope of Emergency Medicine.
- Write an article or give an interview for your local media.
- Come up with a social media competition.

Call for stories and activities
We want to hear your story about your experience with Emergency Medicine. Maybe you have an anecdote to share. By sharing stories, we can raise the awareness of the scope of Emergency Medicine.

Check out the new story from Dušica Jancović, a doctor from Serbia and post your own story as well.

What are you and your organization doing for EM-Day? We can promote your activities on our Map of impact.
